Sexual and Gender-Based Violence

Obtaining Information, Assistance and Support; Reporting Options

WHAT STUDENTS NEED TO KNOW

IMMEDIATELY AFTER INCIDENT

Reporting the Incident

You are strongly encouraged to report sexual and gender-based violence to the police.

Seeking Emergency Medical Attention

You must obtain medical attention at a hospital or clinic (or a school's on-campus health center). If you were unable to seek medical attention at that time, you should seek care as soon as possible. If you have experienced sexual or gender-based violence, you should be aware of the following.

Reporting the Incident

You may report the incident by calling one of the numbers to the right. If you do not feel comfortable speaking on the phone, you may also call ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call.

Seeking Confidential Counseling

You may also seek confidential counseling by calling ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Seeking Remedial and Protective Measures

You may report to the police or University (or both) if you suspect that you are an endangered individual. You may also contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Finding Medical Attention

You must obtain medical attention at a hospital or clinic (or a school's on-campus health center). If you were unable to seek medical attention at that time, you should seek care as soon as possible. If you have experienced sexual or gender-based violence, you should be aware of the following.

Reporting the Incident

You may report the incident by calling one of the numbers to the right. If you do not feel comfortable speaking on the phone, you may also call ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call.

Seeking Confidential Counseling

You may also seek confidential counseling by calling ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Seeking Remedial and Protective Measures

You may report to the police or University (or both) if you suspect that you are an endangered individual. You may also contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Finding Medical Attention

You must obtain medical attention at a hospital or clinic (or a school's on-campus health center). If you were unable to seek medical attention at that time, you should seek care as soon as possible. If you have experienced sexual or gender-based violence, you should be aware of the following.

Reporting the Incident

You may report the incident by calling one of the numbers to the right. If you do not feel comfortable speaking on the phone, you may also call ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call.

Seeking Confidential Counseling

You may also seek confidential counseling by calling ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services. If you need immediate assistance, contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Seeking Remedial and Protective Measures

You may report to the police or University (or both) if you suspect that you are an endangered individual. You may also contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services. If you need immediate assistance, contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.

Finding Medical Attention

You must obtain medical attention at a hospital or clinic (or a school's on-campus health center). If you were unable to seek medical attention at that time, you should seek care as soon as possible. If you have experienced sexual or gender-based violence, you should be aware of the following.

Reporting the Incident

You may report the incident by calling one of the numbers to the right. If you do not feel comfortable speaking on the phone, you may also call ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services. If you need immediate assistance, contact ODOS or the University's Title IX Coordinator directly at (434) 924-7166 and ask to be connected to the Dean on Call. ODOS provides 24-hour crisis management services.